

Legends live forever on Memory Lane

During the BDRHoF's Saturday afternoon bench racing in 2018, Dennis told us "The most phenomenal buzz you can have, is to do a burnout in a funny car," adding with a big grin "not j'st a little tiny chirp, but do a proper burnout and you'll get where you've got handfuls of lock," twisting his hands in mock illustration as you can see, "that is possibly the biggest buzz, even more so than doing the run," adding without a pause "now the run is quick, but the sheer joy of doing a burnout," his eyes sparkling, "and that poor thing in front of you is going through absolute torture and you know, you know that you've got it underneath your foot and it's just," shaking his head with smiling eyes and big a grin as he finished off with, "well, yeah, great," and the happy smile you see above; it was sheer magic!

"Great shot Mike," John Force said while signing it some months later, "Why didn't you sell it to me?" "Because you left town too early! As the minic above compliments Dennis' signature edition over there, thought younger fans would enjoy the pair..."

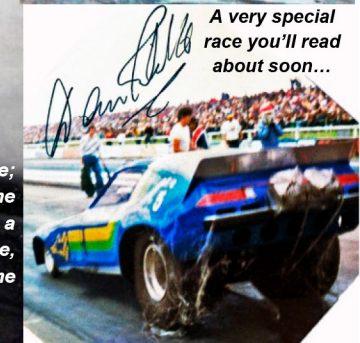

memix for Dennis' family, fans & friends

Following this rampaging burnout Harlan Thompson's Budweiser fuel coupe (and a couple photographers!), are buried under a sea of smoke from Tony Boden's Hit Man! My first ever fuel coupe experience as Dennis' ground shaking burnout kicks off the blue Avenger for a 6.92, 200mph pass that blew my mind as Corey's artwork for Marantz depicts! Dennis loved the original black and white photostat, gifted him with, "Thought you could put it on your loo wall of in case of emergencies." "Roight." he'd said laughing out loud before adding, "Tremendous, thanks," shaking his head, "People basically have to know you Mike," chuckling moments late around, "What you'd call a moind blowing experience..." Sadly, Dennis never saw this one-off mix; but now you too can enjoy the aged black an' white original with his display of Fuel Coupe NitroPower a stereophonic backing posted in his memory with this mix in a special Thanksgiving Day offering. Asked my daughter if she remembered Dennis when told of his passing, "Of course I do, Mr Six, he was a lovely man..." Yes indeed; all miss his warm, generally happy demeanour, and man I really do miss his truly infectious laughter. God speed...

A very special race you'll read about soon...

Never seen the likes before or since; the blazing Florida sun's awesome back lighting adds fiery magic to a thundering burnout by John Force, the greatest of all time
